

Signal flags catch attention!

During the American Civil War, these flags were used to send coded messages from one area to another.

When darkness set in, signal torches replaced the flags for better visibility.

Telegraphs were used to send coded messages across the country. Due to a shortage of men during the war, women were brought in to run the telegraph.

SIGNAL CORPS ASSOCIATION

1860

1865

The Signal Corps offers you a perfect place to get your start in reenacting. We have people from all walks of life.

The organization is comprised of a military and civilian group. If you are interested in taking the field armed, you must be at least 16.

Some enjoy demonstrating history one on one; others would rather take the stage of the battlefield in front of crowds, while others prefer to remain behind the scene.

Today we use signal flags to choreograph battles.

We use telegraphs to send message to and from headquarters.

We eliminated the need for radios and cell phones, thus earning our reputation for being used at all authentic reenactments.

We take great pride in our ability to keep an authentic atmosphere during an entire event.
